KEYNOTE SPEAKER & WORKSHOP LEADER for women's organizations, nonprofits, educational professional associations, and school districts

I train educators how to incorporate core resiliency principles on the job and boost student engagement.

WHY MARCIA

You feel teaching is a not just a career, but your calling. You were born for this noble task. In fact, it's your passion. When you began the journey, you were excited, filled with joy and eager to teach children of all age ranges, backgrounds, and academic levels. Perhaps, you have been called to teach a special group of students. In the beginning, you felt supported, challenged, encouraged by your administrators and inspired by colleagues and mentors... YOU became a teacher to make a DIFFERENCE in the lives of children. However, lately, you've been feeling burned-out, things are different; you began to question is this the path God created for you. You struggle to make it day in and day out, and you are counting the days before your next break. You've prayed, cried, vented and talked to others.

Marcia Y Collins-Brown of What'sinYouCoaching, LLC, trains educators how to incorporate core resiliency principles on the job and boost student academic engagement. Also, Marcia is a certified personal and executive coach, speaker, author of the book "Become Your Absolute a Practical Resiliency guide for professional to STAND OUT among the crowd in education. She provides coaching and training to teachers, principals, and educational organizations who are READY to incorporate core principles, and educational organizations who are READY to incorporate core resiliency principles on the job and BOOST student academic engagement.

Marcia has an earned Masters degree in Education with a specialization in Reading from Texas A&M Commerce University and has an Educational Specialist degree in Reading, Literacy, and Leadership from Walden University.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

I am excited to endorse the book of practical tips, motivational stories, and powerful coaching questions that will help you be the BEST teacher you can possibly be. I know from watching her work that Ms. Collins is highly knowledgeable about what makes a great teacher. However, probably the most important skill she brings to all teachers is an unbridled enthusiasm for educating every child. She will use insightful stories and humorous anecdotes of real classrooms and real situations to provide proven strategies for any classroom.
